P.S.

'Re' the miniature tea-party etc. in Llanfarian, there are a great number of games at various levels of boardness/boredness and some of them are better than others depending on your personal temper...

Llanfarian Gem-Box

A few Sundays ago, I visited a friend for lunch in Llanfarian. Llanfarian is a gem-box sorry place just outside Aberystwyth. You can get to Llanfarian by walking for about the length of a 1-and-a-1...

P.S.

We meet at Watford Junction at the intersection of our respective journeys. Watford Junction is a Big Place. There are not 'cute cafés' with either wistful *or* whimsical terraces just across from...

Paradise Park, La La (London pt. 2)

From the British Library, via our final BL exit-break, in all the red stones, I approach Paradise Park in fresh rain-spots what a dream. Paradise Park, it will be for you and it will be for me.

At the British Library (London pt. 1)

If you write for the LRB, you might title a short 'pithy' article 'At the [Such and Such]'. This tiny-letter (my Tiny Letter spelling of choice I've now decided) is titled 'At the British Library',...

P.S.

Prior to the adventure to Aberaeron occurred the invention of 'carpark toast'. Carpark toast enables you to enjoy a peanut toast-topping where peanut butter is not available, as is often the case i...

Aberaeron, Land of Honey

There is a place called Aberaeron. It is a land of honey. A bee will not sting you. The honey will soothe you, in holiday ice-cream form. There is ice-cream made from honey in Aberaeron, and it is ...

P.S.

Iain Sinclair's poetrerie also references hanging baskets, like those in Bangor as elsewhere, and it also references *beakers*, can u believe it. A dream I had in Bethesda involved wearing holographi...

T2 Final Destination

This latest installment of tiny-letter (Tiny Letter? TinyLetter? tiny letter? How To Format?) is not a reference to the five-befilm'd American horror franchise FINAL
